

In April 2001, the Mars Odyssey spacecraft blasted off toward planet, Mars. Odyssey hoped to observe changes to the planet through out its seasons. After discovering frozen water, mapping the surface of the planet and run a safety check for future astronauts, Odyssey had completed all its' tasks. Then the spacecraft continued to orbit Mars so it could help scientist learn more about the mysterious planet.